Empty Rafts Seen by Navy Force; No Sign Survivors

By WILLIAM MILLER
United Press Staff Correspondent
TAIPEI, Formosa (U.P.) — A U. S. Navy task force operating within sight of Red China's Saddle Islands today spotted empty life rafts and wreckage of a patrol plane believed shot down by Communist fighters with 16 Americans aboard.

There were no signs of survivors.

The search efforts brought an accusation by a Radio Peiping broadcast tonight that the U. S. 7th Fleet had conducted "military provocation" off the China mainland coast. The broadcast charged that American warships and carrier based planes "appeared in the waters and air" over the Tachen and Sheng Su islands Thursday morning.

"A part of the vessels intruded into the waters near the Chou Shan islands early Friday morning," the broadcast said.

It added that from midnight to 4:30 p. m. (local time) Friday, "a total of 54 American naval aircraft on 18 occasions intruded the air over the Sheng Su islands and conducted military provocation."

The Saddle Islands are about 50 miles from the China mainland near Shanghai and 200 miles north of the spot where the plane disappeared early Thursday after reporting it was attacked by unidentified aircraft.

Navy authorities speculated the Martin Mercator, powered by two jets and two piston engines, continued flying after it was damaged and plunged into the sea only a short distance from the jealously-guarded Communist China Coast.

The Navy sent some ships protected by F86 Sabrejets and jets from the aircraft carrier Essex almost to the mouth of strategic Hangchow Bay in search of survivors.

The wreckage was first sighted by planes from the Essex.

A U. S. destroyer arrived at the scene and said it found floating pieces of the plane and two life rafts. Officers said the life rafts were empty.

Hintz Gets 3 to 5 on Bank Deal Charge

Pleads Guilty to Mis-Applying Half Million in Hodge Case

By ROBERT T. LOUGHRAN
United Press Staff Correspondent
CHICAGO (U.P.) — Edward A. Hintz, former president of the Southmoor Bank and Trust Co., was sentenced today to three years in prison and five years probation for mis-applying $461,244 in federal insured funds.

Hintz was the second person sentenced in connection with the million-dollar scandal in the office of former State Auditor Orville E. Hodge. Hodge began serving a 12-15 year state sentence earlier this week.

Barnes stayed Hintz' sentence until Aug. 31, so the former bank president might appear before the Fulbright Committee investigating the Southmoor bank this afternoon, and appear in Sangamon County Circuit Court at Springfield next Monday for arraignment on state charges of conspiracy.

Sentencing followed an appeal by attorney John M. Leonard for probation. Leonard argued that Hintz, like others, was duped by the personable Hodge, and that Hintz "never received a personal gain" from the transactions in which Hodge stole more than one million dollars from the state by cashing phony state checks.

Barnes, in an unusual presence soliloquy on the purpose of punishment, said he originally had considered a 7 1/2-year prison term. He decided against it, he said, when he learned Hintz was 68.

"I feel, however, I must take some time out of this defendant's life," Barnes said.

Leonard had mentioned the illness of Hintz' wife, who is hospitalized at suburban Highland Park and scheduled to undergo surgery, and the effect of a sentence on her.

"Hardly ever is a sentence imposed that someone else is not hurt worse than the defendant," Barnes said.

Peaches Is Dead: Her Actions With Daddy Browning Big Story in Roaring Twenties

NEW YORK (U.P.) — New York City authorities ordered an autopsy performed today on the body of "Peaches" Browning who made boudoir history in the jazz-mad 20's with wealthy Edward R. (Daddy) Browning.

The four-times married Peaches died in New York Hospital Thursday at the age of 46 from a fall suffered Sunday in the bathroom of her luxurious apartment.

Peaches' body, clad in a nightgown, was found by her mother, Mrs. Caroline Heenan. She was in a coma with a bump over her right ear. She died later.

Peaches was listed at the hospital as Mrs. Frances Willson — the name of her fourth and last husband, Ralph Willson, a Columbus, Ohio, businessman.

The world-famous romance between Peaches and Daddy began in 1926 when the 51-year-old wealthy real estate man met 15-year-old Frances Heenan at a textile high school sorority dance at the McAlpin Hotel.

He courted her by letting her drive to high school in his chauffeur-driven robin's egg blue Rolls-Royce. The children's society moved in to thwart their announced marriage but they were wed before the case came up in court.

The wedding was on April 10, 1926, and for six months all went well. The 151-pound Peaches cut a swathe through New York's biggest department stores and Daddy Browning told newsmen he slipped her a $1,000 bill every morning at breakfast.

One day Daddy Browning came home from work and found Peaches gone. He sued for separation. She brought suit for divorce. The courts were full of cases against Browning.

But it was the Peaches-Daddy suit that made newspaper headlines from coast to coast. To call it a sensational trial was an understatement. Peaches gave away honeymoon secrets right and left — "Daddy threw telephone books through the transom and made funny noises, growling or something like that."

Newspapers began calling Daddy Browning "the wolf, wolf man." Peaches lost the suit and $300 a month alimony but later she won a big share of the estate when Browning died in 1934 a few days short of his 60th birthday.

Win or Lose, Republicans Will have Open 1960 National Convention; No 3rd Term

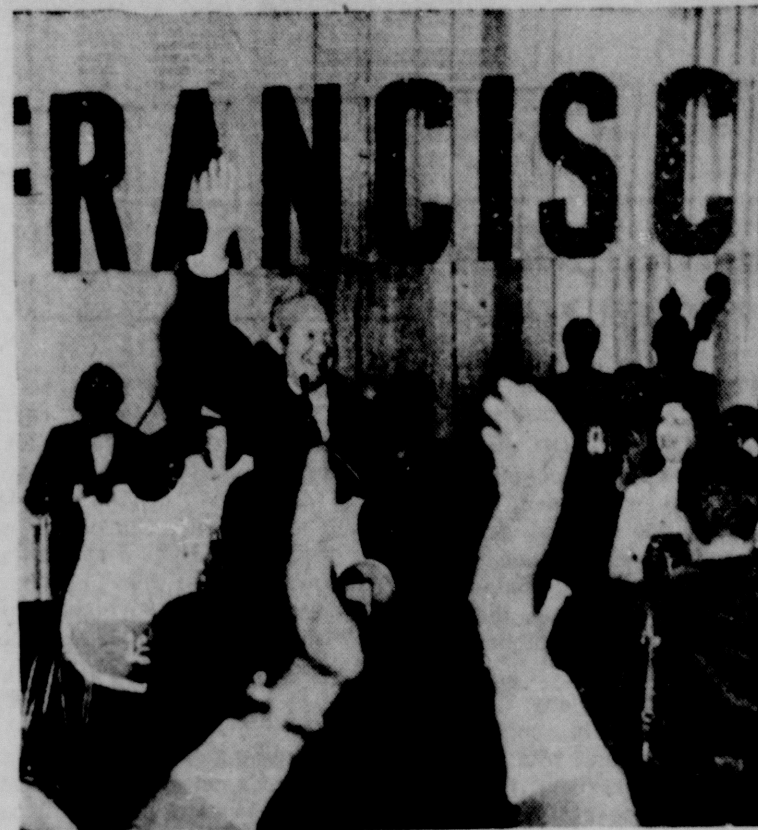

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
SAN FRANCISCO (U.P.) — Win or lose the presidential election, the Republicans have postponed their wide-open national convention until 1960.

President Eisenhower, if re-elected, is barred by the 22nd Amendment from succeeding himself. The political writers of 1960 will be writing of Nixon and Knowland and Dewey if Mr. Eisenhower serves a full second term.

That's a long look ahead with the 1956 convention just extinguished in the last sundown. The look is not too long, however, because in this election year there isn't any Republican party in the sense of a nationally established competitive major political organization.

The Republican party is a man named Eisenhower without whom it might as well save its campaign money this year for a rainy day. That probably is the most significant political fact of 1956. The conservative or Taft element of the Republican party is leaderless unless you count Vice President Richard M. Nixon. Count him or not, Nixon was renominated here only

Recruit Youth, Ike Tells Convention

Big Republican Meeting Ends With His Talk

Forward Look Theme Of Speech; No Harsh Attacks on Demos

SAN FRANCISCO (U.P.) — President Eisenhower sent Republican delegates home from their centennial convention today with orders to recruit "young crusaders" into the GOP to make it the "party of the future."

The forward look was the campaign theme which Mr. Eisenhower stressed in accepting his second commission as Republican standard-bearer.

But the party organization was also being assured that the 1956 Republican campaign will stress some less lofty themes — of the kind that politicians call "belly issues" — to persuade the voters that they never had it so good.

The GOP adjourned its four-day convention in the vast Cow Palace Thursday night after hearing acceptance speeches from Mr. Eisenhower and Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the party's unanimous nominees to run against the Democratic ticket of Adlai E. Stevenson and Sen. Estes Kefauver.

New Look Outlined

Mr. Eisenhower was beaming and looking fit as he outlined to the cheering delegates the new look he would like to give the Grand Old Party.

Nixon, who returned to the bedside of his ailing 77-year-old father immediately after the session promised to deliver the message "to every corner of the land." The vice president, whose past campaign tactics have drawn cries of foul from Democrats, avoided any harsh attacks on the opposition and devoted most of his speech to praise for the President and the record of the administration.

Delegates came here with confidence that the renomination of the President would assure a Republican victory this year and

Stratton and Dirksen to Head Two Caravans Into Downstate Illinois

SPRINGFIELD (U.P.) — Gov. William G. Stratton and other candidates on the Republican state ticket will open the fall political campaign Sept. 10 with a two-caravan tour of downstate.

Stratton will head one caravan, which will include Secretary of State Charles F. Carpenter, Atty. Gen. Latham Castle and Elbert S. Smith, candidate for state auditor.

U. S. Sen. Everett M. Dirksen will head the other caravan which will include Lt. Gov. John W. Chapman, Elmer J. Hoffman, candidate for state treasurer, and Mrs. Earle B. Seary, Supreme Court clerk.

Homes Wrecked, Four Hurt; Cool Air Comes Down from Canada

A mass of cooler air pushed southward from Canada over the north-central portion of the country today following tornadoes which smashed into two Illinois towns.

The cooler air covered the Great Lakes region and extended southward to Missouri and west to the Dakotas.

Weathermen said tornadoes which struck the Chicago suburbs of Tinley Park and Monee, Ill., were spawned by the cool front which also triggered heavy rains which was curb-deep in downtown Chicago streets.

At least four persons were injured by the twisters, all at Tinley Park where at least 15 homes were wrecked. Nine homes were totally destroyed while other homes were not fit for living. Red Cross disaster crews rushed to the town shortly after the tornado struck.

The other tornado struck farther south at Monee, ramming into a truck weighing station at the outskirts of the town. Heavy vehicles were spun into the air. One driver rode out the twister in his cab while his truck spun in the air 30 feet off the ground, police said. He was not hurt.

FBI Nabs Kidnaper, Who Denies Killing Infant; Abandoned It, He Says, Day After He Took It

By WARREN FRANKLIN
United Press Staff Correspondent

MINEOLA, N. Y. (U.P.) — The decomposed body of the kidnaped Weinberger baby was found today in the Long Island woods where he was abandoned by his kidnaper July 5.

The body of the child was found some 12 hours after Angelo John LaMarca, 31, a bushy-haired mechanic, confessed to police and FBI agents that he kidnaped the child.

The child's almost indistinguishable remains were found under a scrub oak tree about 150 feet off the heavily traveled Northern State Parkway.

In his confession, LaMarca denied he killed month-old Peter but said he had placed him "gently" in the woods less than 24 hours after he stole him from his carriage on July 4.

Tiny Bones — Police found an almost indistinguishable bundle. A safety pin held what appeared to be the remains of a garment. Below it was what appeared to be tiny bones.

Search of the area pointed out by LaMarca began under heavily clouded skies this morning. Some 50 work-clothed policemen moved an arm's length apart through a 200-acre area of trees and heavy underbrush.

Assistant Chief of Detectives James Farrell told reporters: "A safety pin was found and remains of what must have been a garment. Beneath it we saw what appeared to be a small bone or bones."

Calm and Tearless — Police did not touch the bundle. The medical examiner arrived on the scene almost immediately. He delayed his examination until photographs were made.

Farrell said the hot, damp summer weather had caused "rapid decomposition" of the body.

The child's parents, Beatrice and Morris Weinberger, were notified of the find by newsmen. Both were calm and tearless.

Newsmen first told the 48-year-old father. When his wife came from the house he told her in a matter-of-fact voice. "They say they found the body in the woods."

Mrs. Weinberg, 32, who had kept countless false rendezvous with callers claiming to be the kidnaper, remained calm.

Maximum Penalty Death — At almost the same moment LaMarca was led in handcuffs into the county courthouse where he was arraigned on a kidnapping charge, which carries a maximum penalty of death on conviction.

Police quoted LaMarca as saying he took the baby because he "needed money badly." He told police he owed nearly $2,000 for storm windows and a refrigerator for his new home and an automobile.

They said LaMarca made one futile attempt to collect the $2,000 he asked for in his ransom note but was frightened off by crowds near the pickup point. He then abandoned the helpless child alive police said.

Other Persons Involved? — Nassau County District Attorney Frank Gullotta emphasized that the case was not closed and implied that other persons were involved. A detective who asked that his name not be used told United Press that the kidnaper took the baby to the home of friends in Brooklyn the night of July 4.

Stuyvesant Pincell, chief of Nassau County detectives, said LaMarca had confessed only to kidnapping the child, not to killing it. LaMarca told detectives he took the baby to a secluded area. "put it down gently," and fled. There was only the slimmest of chances that anyone had found the baby

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Drew Pearson Says: Sen. Margaret Chase Smith for Vice President Discussed Behind Scenes; Sooner or Later Political Leaders Will Have to Decide on Women Candidates; Gov. Knight and Senator Knowland, once Allies Against Nixon, Battled Over Nixon.

WASHINGTON—The Democrats in Chicago seriously considered putting a Catholic on their ticket for vice president. The Republicans at San Francisco considered—less seriously—the idea of nominating a woman.

The question came up in a closed-door argument of Maine delegates over nominating the only lady ever elected to the Senate twice in the history of the U. S. A. Paradoxically, it was ex-Senator Owen Brewster of Maine, who once frowned on Sen. Margaret Chase Smith for re-election, who this time rallied to her defense. Senator Smith, in turn, had once been quite chilly to Brewster's re-election. But at San Francisco, Brewster was Sir Lancelot in defense of the lady.

The closed-door argument began when Peter Garland, young delegate from Sag., Me., moved to table the proposal to nominate Senator Smith.

"Why do you make a motion like that?" asked Brewster. "You realize that Maine faces a hard election fight next month and Mrs. Smith is in Maine working her head off right now for the Republicans. Nothing could help her more right now than to have her name go before the convention." Garland had no adequate reply. "Do you want to prevent Mrs. Smith's name from being placed in nomination?" Brewster pressed.

"What are you picking on him for?" interrupted Fred Scribner, another Maine delegate who is counsel to Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey.

"I'm not picking on him," countered Brewster. "He's made a motion against a valiant lady, and we're entitled to discuss the motion. We're entitled to know the reasons for his motion. After all, this is counter to the resolution passed by our State Central Committee that Mrs. Smith's name should be placed in nomination."

After further argument it was agreed that Senator Smith's name would be placed in nomination "if feasible." However, John Weston, the Fryburg horse and cattle dealer, was picked to make the nominating speech, instead of Brewster.

WOMEN'S HOPE

It hasn't made headlines, but thousands of women all over the U. S. A. have been intensely interested in moves to name or block a woman as vice president.

At the Chicago GOP convention in 1952 when the vice presidency at first was wide open, Senator Smith had 250 pledged delegates, when suddenly Governor Dewey sent word by Mary Donlan, now on the Court of Claims, that Mrs. Smith's name could not be placed in nomination.

He feared that many Taft delegates, then bitterly opposed to Eisenhower, would vote for Senator Smith in revenge for Taft's defeat, thus prevent Nixon from winning on the first ballot.

As a result, Clare Boothe Luce rose on the convention floor and without consulting Mrs. Smith said that Senator Smith had asked that her name not be placed before the convention. This brought a storm of protest from women, especially Judge Sarah Hughes, president of the Business and Professional Women.

"The Republicans," said Judge Hughes, "wouldn't even let the name of Margaret Chase Smith be placed in nomination, while the Democrats placed two in nomination (Mrs. India Edwards and Judge Hughes)."

Later, GOP Grand Dame Bertha Adkins asked Senator Smith to repudiate Judge Hughes. Mrs. Smith refused.

So, regardless of 1952 and 1956 conventions, the two major parties sooner or later will have to consider seriously the nomination of a lady vice president.

CALIFORNIA'S FAVORITES

The friction between California's blunt, outspoken Governor "Goody" Knight and California's smooth and smiling Dick Nixon got plenty of headlines, but some of the wrangling with California's Senator Bill Knowland was behind closed doors.

Knowland's switch from Knight to Nixon is one of the most amazing in a political merry-go-round where almost any miracle is possible. Most people have forgotten it, but just two years ago this summer Knowland dropped important duties in the Senate, including the pending censure of Joe McCarthy, to fly to Sacramento. Responding for the sudden flight was to stop Nixon from securing control of the California organization.

Nixon wanted to get his man, Ray Arbutnot, elected as state GOP chairman. Knowland and Knight wanted their man, Howard Almonson, to be state chairman. Knowland threw his weight behind Governor Knight and against Nixon. He and Knight won.

But in San Francisco this week, how different!

"You either take Nixon as the candidate," threatened Senator Knowland in one stormy closed-door session, "or you get out as chairman of the California delegation."

Then he countered: "All right, I'll get out as chairman, and simultaneously 23 delegates from the state of California will tell the world how they feel about Nixon." Such publicity was the last thing Knowland wanted. He didn't force the issue. But all during the convention the feud flamed between Nixon and Knowland on one side, and the one important state governor who dared to come out flat-footed and say he was against the party bosses' choice for vice president.

GOP MERRY-GO-ROUND

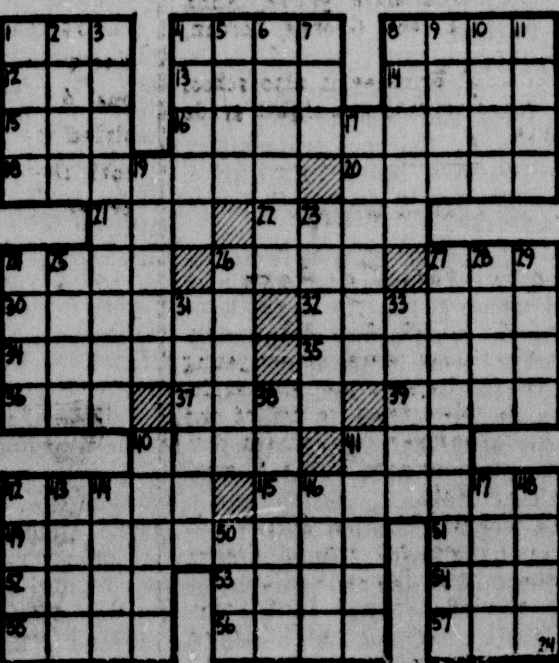

Convention Presiding Officer Joe Martin should now have the biggest individual collection of gavel in the country. This is the fifth time Martin has presided over a convention. Each time, Vermont admirers have sent him a batch of gavels. In addition, Martin is the proud owner of the world's biggest gavel, a gift of California Republicans and carved out of a redwood tree that was a sapling at the start of the Christian era. Joe didn't bring this one to San Francisco. It weighs 60 pounds. Secretary Dulles was most unhappy at being absent from San Francisco. He was planning to be a star performer in writing a foreign policy plank for the GOP platform which would tell of his many so-called diplomatic victories.

Thinking It Over

By Robert L. Dieffenbacher, D. D. Written for NEA Service

Although there are vast areas of plains and flat lands in the United States, there are even more areas of rolling countryside and mountainous country. Adventurous people have set foot to conquer all frontiers. Mountains, rivers, swamps, and forests have all been worked over to make them accessible to human travel.

Roads have been cut on the sides of mountains. Rivers and chasms have been bridged. Swamps have been filled. Some of these roads are wide and smooth. Others are narrow, rough and hazardous. Some are steep and breathtaking.

Along almost all of the highways of America are warning signs which advise the tourist of curves, crossroads, and points of danger. Along the sides of the circuitous mountain routes are guardrails to protect people from accidentally driving off the road. A momentary turn of the car wheel would send a car hurtling hundreds of feet down a ravine. Death would claim the lives of many people if the guardrails were not present.

These protective devices furnish mental and emotional security as well as physical protection. Few people ever hit the guardrails, but the fact that the guardrails are in place relieves the mental suffering of untold imagined accidents. The protective curbs along our highways are insignificant when we compare them with the spiritual protection which God has given to man in the form of prayer, forgiveness and promise of eternal life. We all fear the spiritual falls which might occur if we did not heed God's warnings. We must constantly read the spiritual road signs and live in accordance with the laws of love, hope and faith.

Medicines in bottles excite the curiosity of children. Unfortunately many folks leave medicines carelessly available for children to play with. There have been too many serious consequences from such thoughtlessness.

Give your children no opportunity to play with, or take overdoses of any medicines. Store them far away from their reach. And please be extra cautious when giving any medicines to children. Will Gentry removed his cigar from between his teeth and nodded. "Anything else occur to you, Mike?"

Shayne shook his head. "I don't see how Mr. Raine can help us any more than that. You didn't search the body?" he added.

"Naturally not," Raine was quite properly indignant. "I could see it was murder right away and I didn't touch him."

Gentry got up to shake his hand. "Thanks for being so cooperative, Mr. Raine. You're not pulling out right away?"

"Not for 10 days at least."

"A man outside will drive you back to the pier," Gentry told him. "Have him stop some place for you to buy cigars." He shrugged when the door closed behind the man.

"I know," Shayne scowled angrily. "But you can't get away from the gal who tried to force $140 bucks on me at 10 o'clock to pick the guy up at the Silver Glade."

Gentry drummed fingertips on his desk irritably. "There's a telephone listed for Barnes at that New York address. It didn't answer. I phoned the police to get anything they could on Barnes. And I've got a detective driving down from Jax with a picture of Bert and Nellie Paulson. Nothing to do but mark time, I guess."

Shayne squirmed uncomfortably in his chair. He wished, now, that he had told Gentry in the beginning about sending the girl to Lucy's apartment. In a sense, he looked on her as a client, and until he knew more about the case he had instinctively withheld the information that would have automatically brought her in for police interrogation.

He was roused from his brief reverie by a tap on the door and the entrance of Sergeant Hopkins of the Identification Squad.

He was young and square-jawed and had a crew-cut, and was not in uniform. He nodded incuriously to Shayne, stood stiffly in front of the desk and reported, "I'm just back from the Hibiscus, sir. We gave 316 the works."

"Well?" Gentry rumbled.

"We got nothing, I'm afraid. Photographs of the bed with careful lighting indicates someone has lain heavily on it since it was made up. We found no bloodstains. One set of fingerprints pretty well all over, in places that indicate they must be from the occupant of the room—another set that we checked out as the hotel maid. Prints of an unidentified man on the door-frame and the back of a chair."

When he stopped, Shayne broke in. "What about the windows?"

The sergeant regarded him stolidly. "Only the occupant's prints there. One of the screens is latched and probably hasn't been opened for months. The other opens easily and there was no dust underneath or on the sill." He shrugged and added, "On the other hand, the maid says she quite likely opened it herself recently in cleaning up the room."

Shayne let out a deep sigh. "I guess that puts it straight up to me."

"Puts what up to you?" Gentry was instantly and suspiciously alert.

Shayne grinned at him. "The girl who claims he's her brother."

Gentry's heavy black brows came down threateningly. "You told me she ran out on you. Down your fire escape and disappeared."

"She did. But I somehow forgot to mention that before she went into the kitchen I'd given her Lucy's address with a note to Lucy, and told her to go there."

"Do you mean to say you've got reasons to think she's at Lucy's now?"

Shayne kept his grin working and said lightly, "I can do better than that. I know she is. Remember when Lucy telephoned? That was to say she'd arrived safely."

Shayne reached for the telephone hastily as a rumble of anger spilled out from between Gentry's thick lips. "You've got to admit we're lucky to have her on tap this way." He gave Lucy's number into the phone.

He listened to her phone ring five times before she answered. Then her voice sounded curiously thick, and the words were fuzzy at the edges. "Hello. Who is this?"

"Mike. Have you been asleep?"

"Just dozed off, I guess."

"Well, get yourself waked up," he said impatiently. "Both of you. I'm on my way over."

"Both of us? What do you mean, Michael?"

"Miss Paulson. Is she in bed?"

"But she left, Michael."

"What? When? I sent her there for you to take care of her."

"You didn't tell me I was to look her in, did you? How was I to keep her here if she decided not to stay?"

"When did she leave, Lucy? What did she say?"

"Fifteen or 20 minutes ago. She didn't say anything. Just thank you for the drink and I tank I go home now. And she went."

Shayne slammed the phone down to prevent himself from taking any more of his sickening anger out on Lucy. He looked up, bracing himself to meet Gentry's fierce gaze, and said unnecessarily: "She's ducked out on us, Will."

Riegel Family Has Two-Day Reunion at Willie Riegel Home

The Riegel Brothers, Roy and Willie B., and their wives, were very gracious hosts and hostesses at the 38th annual Riegel reunion Sunday.

The clan assembled shortly before noon at the Willie B. Riegel home where a spacious lawn and shade was a fitting setting for the 50 foot dinner table. Rev. Dean Guey invoked a blessing upon the family and the sumptuous meal.

The afternoon dollar and horseshoe games held the men's attention while the women were engaged in more "homey" topics and "tending" the children as they enjoyed the swings and other playground equipment.

A brief program was rendered largely by the youngsters. A skit "The Rummage Sale" by Carla Harris, Cheryl Edwards, Linda Riegel, Carol and Phyllis Drott evoked the most laughter when the audience recognized their own possessions about to be auctioned.

The present officers were retained for another year—president, Paul R. Drott; vice president, John C. Small, and secretary, Miss Mary Margaret Small.

Oldest member attending, Mrs. Mary Riegel and the youngest, Marcia Lynn Evans, were recognized by the chairman. Guests from a distance spoke briefly. The group voted to fry fish at Cave-in-Rock park on Monday and 45 pounds of fish were eaten along with many other viands by the 57 who attended. Dr. and Mrs. Jean Boatright will be host and hostess for the 1957 reunion with the H. D. Riegel descendants as alternates.

The guest list for the two days was as follows: out of the county were Mr. and Mrs. Hiley Lloyd and grandson, Ricky, Jackson, O. Mr. and Mrs. James Lambert and daughter, Dorothy Ann, Woodbridge, Va., Mrs. Gilbert Small of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Drott and children, East St. Louis, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Edwards and children of Marion.

Local people present were Mrs. Mary Riegel, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Riegel, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Riegel and children, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Riegel and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Evans and children, Mrs. Bedie Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Harris and daughter, Carla, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Small, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Small, Mary Margaret Small, Henry Quinn, Mrs. Ima Boatright, Dr. and Mrs. Jean Boatright and son, Tommy, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Drott, Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Nickell Testifies in Food-Hauling Probe

CHICAGO (AP)—Vernon L. Nickell, state superintendent of public instruction, testified before Cook County grand jury in a probe of a food-hauling contract awarded Dunbar and Co.

Nickell appeared before the jury Thursday and said he would sign an immunity waiver.

Before entering the jury room, Nickell told newsmen he saw nothing wrong in the exclusive contract granted by him to Dunbar, a Springfield hauling firm. That contract called for distribution of surplus federal foods to schools and other public institutions.

Here he charged the Democrats with running on the depression issues of the 1930's.

"It is the party that draws people together, not drives them apart."

He disputed Democratic charges that the GOP is a "one interest" party by asserting that its single interest is that of all the people.

Action Promised

"It is the party through which the many things that still need doing will soonest be done... by enlisting the fullest energies of free, creative and individual people."

"A party of the future must be completely dedicated to peace" and he said in that direction.

"In firm faith, and in the conviction that Republican purposes and principles are in league with this kind of future, the nomination that you have tendered me for the presidency of the United States I now—humbly and confidently—accept," said Mr. Eisenhower.

He warned the delegates against "smugness."

"True, things are going well. But there are thousands of things still to be done. There are still enough injustices to be erased, still enough needless sufferings to be cured to provide careers for all the young crusaders we can produce or find."

"We want them all. Republicans, Independents, discerning Democrats, come on in and help us."

Full-Time Office at Home

The record, as reviewed by Cong. Gray, contained 42 points and revealed he had made more than 200 speeches in southern Illinois, made several TV appearances and sent out more than 100,000 letters in his attempt to bring attention to the area's need for economic assistance.

Cong. Gray also reported he had maintained a full-time, fully staffed office in southern Illinois so the people of his district could bring their problems to his personal attention. Several thousands of visitors have been in the office since it was opened.

And during his twenty months as a congressman, Gray has personally answered over 75,000 letters, telegrams and telephone calls he stated. "I read all incoming mail and give each one my prompt and personal attention," Cong. Gray declared.

Gray left immediately after the program for Benton where a homecoming celebration was being held in his honor last night.

The Stonefort reunion will continue through Saturday night. Tonight is Republican night and Saturday's program will feature Ernie Hillman and Troups, KSD-TV and radio stars.

with Mr. Eisenhower's by-your-leave.

Ike's Position Recalls FDR's
The President could have had anyone he liked on the ticket with him, including a woman or Harold E. Stassen, if he'd given the word. Franklin D. Roosevelt was in the same position 20 years ago on his renomination for a second term. The elements which supported him unanimously were as different as the shape of snow flakes, but as one in their devotion to a winner.

Mr. Roosevelt moved on in his second term to re-shape the Democratic party in form resented or hated by the conservatives who called themselves Democrats. Mr. Eisenhower may have a chance to do likewise with the Republican party in the next four years. The parallel ends there, however, because FDR could carry on with a third term and a fourth whereas Mr. Eisenhower cannot aspire to more than eight White House years.

If re-elected, Mr. Eisenhower will be confronted with a choice far more important than that for second place on his 1956 ticket. That will be the choice of his successor. He need not make it, and if he doesn't, there would be an open convention, in fact. He will be under tremendous pressure, however, to pick a man, especially pressure from the various men who already are committed to his re-election with sturdy hopes to succeed him.

The convention just adjourned here functioned slick as hair oil. No nobbles, bolts or booby traps. There was mighty little real enthusiasm, however, perhaps because

Higher Money Rates Reveal New Peaks In Industrial Boom

NEW YORK (AP)—Higher money rates rounded out a further rise in the Federal Reserve System's discount rate reveals America's industrial boom setting new peaks, money market expert said today.

Demand for money for business use is so great, they explained, that it exceeds the supply and sends rates soaring.

The Federal Reserve's action in boosting its discount rate—the rate at which member banks borrow from the reserve—reflects that situation and also reveals the federal reserve is still keeping a tight control on credit to prevent a runaway inflation, it is pointed out.

Federal Grand Jury To Resume Probe of Wortman's Finances

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP)—The federal grand jury investigation into the financial affairs of Frank (Buster) Wortman—will resume here Monday.

U. S. Atty. Clifford Raemer said 17 witnesses have been subpoenaed for the resumption of the inquiry. Names of those called to testify have been withheld but among those already summoned who have not yet testified are Wortman himself and his chief lieutenant, Elmer (Dutch) Dowling.

Also on the former list are Gordon Foster, Wortman's nephew and operator of the Red Rooster Tavern near Fairmount race track.

Cost of Living Jumps Again

The rise means pay hikes ranging from 3 to 5 cents an hour for 1,250,000 auto, aircraft and farm equipment workers.

Reids, Moving, Sell Carrier Mills Home With One Classified

Mr. and Mrs. James Reid of Carrier Mills are satisfied Daily Register classified users.

The Reids are moving from Carrier Mills to Marion and one day this week advertised their home for sale. One ad did the trick. Mrs. Mary Cowger, RFD Carrier Mills, saw the ad, looked at the house and the deal was closed.

Mr. Reid, who formerly operated an insurance agency in Carrier Mills, has been an adjuster for the Hawkeye Security Insurance Co. for the past year with headquarters in Marion.

Mrs. Reid, who taught one of the first grade rooms at Carrier Mills has been employed to teach at the Spillertown attendance center of the Marion unit system.

They have a daughter, Donna, who will be an eighth grade pupil and their son, Jim, graduated from Carrier Mills high school this spring and has enrolled at SIU for this term.

The Reids have purchased a home in Marion and will move as soon as they gain possession, which will probably be in two or three weeks.

alive and taken it home without notifying police, a spokesman said.

The confessed kidnaper, who once was given a one-year suspended sentence for bootlegging and had a police record, was trapped by persistent FBI agents through his handwriting on the ransom note.

The G-men turned their information over to Nassau County police when it developed no federal laws were broken and police arrested him.

Extensive Questioning

LaMarca was arrested Thursday and booked late Thursday night on a kidnapping charge. He was questioned from 9:30 p. m. Thursday to 3:15 a. m. today and then was led, shaken and cowering, to a cell through a confusion of popping flashbulbs and shouting newsmen.

The swarthy kidnaper, who has a pencil-thin mustache and appeared neat in his clean, green overalls, is married and the father of two young sons. He lives in a $15,000 home in a new housing development about five miles from the Weinberger home on Long Island.

His wife, Domenica, was taken to headquarters Thursday night for questioning but police said she had been absolved of any part in the crime and no legal action was planned against her.

LaMarca, who police said appeared "calm and unruffled" during the questioning, told them he had picked the Weinberger home at random last July 4 when he decided a kidnap was the best way to get much-needed money.

Parks Near Home

He said he wrote the kidnap note in his old-model Plymouth while parked near the Weinbergers' comfortable ranch-style home.

When Mrs. Beatrice Weinberger, 32, went into the house for a moment, leaving the child in its carriage on the patio, LaMarca took the baby and sped off.

He told police he made a telephone call to the distraught family shortly after the kidnapping and said he made two more calls July 10. During the second two calls, Mrs. Weinberger was definitely able to establish that he was the same man who called after the kidnapping.

One-Hitter by Roper Features Kiwanis Play

By DAVID NELSON

Walkers downed the Pirates, 11-1, Jacksons defeated Pankeys 9-4 and the VFW beat the Social Brethrens, 13-1, in Kiwanis league play Thursday.

Walkers scored eight runs in the second inning to put the game in the bag. Potter pitched for the winners, giving up one run on three hits. He walked six and struck out 11.

Cannon led Walkers at bat with a homer, triple and single in four times at bat and Potter and Hodson hit safely twice each. Blades had two hits and Morgan one for the losers. Howton, on the hill for the Pirates, took the loss.

Craver, who pitched steady eight-inning ball, picked up four safeties himself to lead Jacksons to their win over Pankeys. Jacksons scored their nine runs on 11 hits, three errors and two walks. Pankeys tallied four times on eight hits, three errors and two bases on balls. Behind Craver's four hits for the winners were Johnson with two and Hegglin, Gulley, Wollesen, Kihlmire and Shanks with one each. Wunderlich led the losers' attack with two hits in four trips. Garrett took the defeat.

Roper pitched a one-hitter and got two doubles as the VFW beat the Social Brethrens nine. He walked six and struck out nine. Agin, on the mound for the losers, gave up only four hits but walked nine, which was his downfall.

Roper had two hits, Faezle tripled and Banks singled for the winners, with Hagan getting the losers' only safety. The VFW got 13 runs on four hits and had one error. The Social Brethrens got one run on one hit and committed one error.

Odds Smith Won't Be Champion After Friday Night Fight

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Friday night's "hotel-register" fight between Smith and Brown for the world lightweight title (over WSIL-TV) is attracting much attention and considerable cash because of the uncertainty over Smith's condition.

Wallace (Bud) Smith of Cincinnati is the 135-pound champion, although nine of 10 guys on the street don't know it. And the odds of 7½ to 5 say he won't be champion, at all, after Friday night's defense against lanky Joe Brown of New Orleans.

Lou Viscusi, Brown's manager, declared today, "Smith can't be as bad as he looked in training at Curley's gymnasium. I have information he's been taking secret workouts at night."

However, the 27-year old champion explained, "I ain't been taking no secret workouts. I've just been going through the boxin' motions at Curley's because I know Brown had spies at all my workouts."

Prospects of a new clamping from New Orleans have boosted the ticket sale to an advance of $30,000, according to co-promoters Jim T. Owens and William (Bonny) Geigerman, who still hope for a sellout of $60,000, a new Louisiana record.

Newcombe Wins No. 20 as Dodgers Beat Redlegs; Cards Beat Pirates Twice

By FRED DOWN
United Press Sports Writer

Don Newcombe became the major leagues' first 20-game victor of the year today and set his sights on being the Brooklyn Dodgers' biggest winner in 32 years.

Newcombe yielded three home runs but hung on for a 6-5 triumph Thursday night to raise his season record to 20-6 as the Dodgers won the opener of a key three-game series with the Redlegs. The victory enabled the Dodgers to remain two games behind the first-place Milwaukee Braves and shoved the Redlegs four games out of first place.

Newcombe requires only three more victories to become the Dodgers' biggest winner since Dazzy Vance won 28 games in 1924. Since then, no Dodger pitcher has won more than 22 games in a single season.

Redlegs Continue Homer Pace

Carl Furillo and Duke Snider each drove in three runs to offset a three-run homer by Wally Post and solo round-trippers by Frank Robinson and Ed Bailey. The three homers raised the Redlegs' total to a new season club mark of 183 and also extended their team homer streak to 20 games—only four short of the National League mark held by the 1953 Dodgers.

Newcombe himself scored the winning run in the top of the ninth when he tallied on Snider's double. Big Newk walked only one batter and struck out six in giving the Dodgers their eighth win in 18 meetings with the Redlegs.

The Braves retained their two-game lead with an 11-5 win over the Philadelphia Phillies featured by a grand-slam homer by Bobby

Looking At Sports

By BILL MELTON

The big sports news in high school circles is football. In looking through the exchanges the past few days every sports page had a mention of the approaching grid season. Candidates for football are getting physical exams and equipment, with practice sessions scheduled for Monday, Aug. 27.

Over at Eldorado the coaching staff has been completed with "Chuck" Leonard, a member of the staff for the past several years, deciding to continue for at least another school term.

As early as last spring Leonard talked of retiring from the coaching field and actually didn't make a decision not to retire until this week. He probably will direct the freshman-sophomore group as he is familiar with the Eldorado system as installed by Coach Al Adams. The third member of the staff, Jim Redden, will assist with the varsity and stress defensive play while picking up the ETHS offensive style.

And also at Eldorado, Adams is making plans for early practice to be held on the outfield of the Raleigh baseball diamond. The Eldorado gridiron has been ditched for the installation of a water system and although the water pipes have been laid and the ditches filled, a large roller is being used in an effort to get the field in condition and it probably will be in pretty good shape by the start of school if it isn't used for practice.

Down Cairo way it is said that Coach Don Cross will welcome a squad that will be minus ten of last year's regulars who graduated this past spring. Big man missing from the running game will be Don Miller, speed merchant and high scoring halfback. Cairo lost three backs and seven linemen.

A total of 360 Illinois high schools are expected to play regular 11-man football this season, with 20 schools competing in eight-man football and six-man ball being played at 15 high schools.

Legion Plays Norris City Saturday Night Game

The Norris City Merchants will meet the Harrisburg Legion nine at 7:45 p. m. Saturday at the VFW park.

Norris City's team features the two Bartnicki brothers, both great hitters. Barney, 6-6, also is an outstanding pitcher. Last time the Legion played Norris City Barney Bartnicki pitched and hit the Merchants to a 7-7 tie. In this game he hit the longest hit by a left-handed swinger at the new VFW park.

Diamond Cuts
